

seven days. seven projects.
seven messages in a bottle

jennifer matsumoto

how would i capture
my day to share with friends and family?

how do i make
each day special?

explore.
try something new,
use my senses,
capture activities,
inspire ideas.

i think i'm feeling japanese a personal reflection my identity, searching out new things, and finding home away from home.

day 1

chopsticks (hashi), Kietya, rice, Muji, Sunrise Mart, Uniqlo

trash or treasure?

trash is everywhere here!

appreciating what i have and actively look for ways to “re-purpose” unwanted “junk” you have.

day 2

re-purposed earphones, bags and bags of trash i got mail!

finding something unexpected, serendipity, unpacking boxes and appreciating design

day 3

AIGA Honolulu poster clipping, card from Aunty Joy, DaKine sticker, Serendipity, Trader Joe's, Mentos Up2U gum wrapper, “worth every penny”

culture of the city,
the value of a dollar,
discovery of the smaller things

day 4

Chinatown, crayons,
Jack's 99 cent Store, pasta

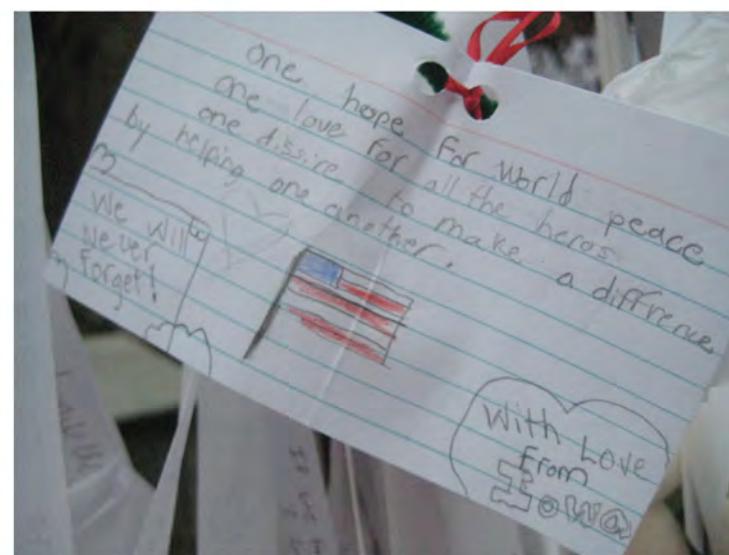

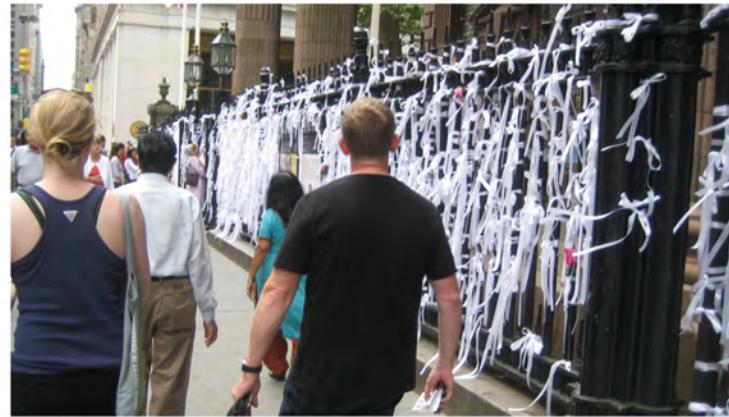

<http://www.8coupons.com/discounts/jack-s-99-cent-store-new-york-10165> remember to love

a day of remembrance,
appreciation and reflection

day 5

American Flag
(compliments of Duane Reade), white ribbon

processing, Processing
the battle with understanding code, and making something beautiful out of it

day 6

Processing project using downloaded Libraries woodn't you know

doing something i love, to reflect on where i live.

day 7

glass beads from Ghana, woodcut remains messages in a bottle

there is a lot in this city, can't appreciate what you had,
without leaving it behind,
everyday is an adventure.